To Whom It Concerns:

This correspondence is sent in support of an immensely worthwhile and timely endeavor: the American Millennium Project.

A critical need exists for the youth (and other members of the community) to be connected to the rich history of their area, and of the state. Chris Chandler, through the American Millennium Project, strives to accomplish this for many area youth. AMP's combination of having the participants delve into and understand area history, along with character development, education, understanding diversity and service to the community will doubtless serve to enrich the lives of the involved youth and the volunteers in the community. Chris's passion for the project and his zeal for the mission are evident, and I am sure will be key components of AMP's success.

I am proud to be involved in such a needed and innovative approach in serving the youth of our community.

In Service,

Ron Anderson
