Dear Chris:

I am writing this letter to confirm my support and encouragement for The American Millennium Project (AMP) local educational tours.

I really like the idea of high-quality educational tours locally developed to focus on teaching local history and culture to our community with a vision of possibility expanding this concept of learning local history throughout the state and eventually our country.

It is apparent to me that a lot of folks (including me) living in American cities have insufficient knowledge of history about the city they call home. With your vision to inspire our citizens to learn their local history, you started The American Millennium Project believing that the people of Shreveport/Caddo Parish deserve to know their shared history.

I understand that through the utilization of "Adventure Tours," AMP has organized and developed fourteen (14) tours to local sites of historical and cultural significance within the borders of Caddo Parish, teaching history in an "adventuresome hands-on" format, designed to eliminate the barriers often associated with the study of history. Personally, I can't wait to take a few of these tours.

In fact, as you and I have discussed, I believe with the level of quality, detail and accuracy you envision and have relayed to me, these tours should be profitable to the point of carrying the organization. Perhaps AMP will be able to give tours to local clubs and school groups for free or with specific sponsors.

Let me know when you are ready to fill the first paying tour.

Very truly yours,
